Excerpt: . cabin was changed into a good one because everybody set to work to improve it. Roof, walls and bed, all were prepared in one day. The altar was set up in a little clearing, which was made on the west, and the cross was placed as usual. On the next day, the 15th, the Holy Mass was said, and we breakfasted. In a little while there came an Alcalde from the River Bstrella, saying that the Indians were fleeing, because Biterio, the Jefe Politico (-political head) of Bstrella had threatened them if they presented themselves, that those who were baptized would die and that we came killing the Indians and eating their pigs and fowls and that he left them to go to complain to the Government of Costa Rica. The Bishop asked him if there were many Indians up the river and as he said there were, he decided to go alone with the Alcalde and a peon, as he did, leaving after breakfast at 10 a. m., recommending us to take care of the sick man who was getting worse daily. On the 16th, in the afternoon, he came back, without having been able to find the Indians, who were really fleeing, finding all their dishes in confusion, so that there was no hope whatever. All he could ascertain was that Biterio or Emeterio was a Christian, who lived with four women in his house and that he had in fact...
